DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 41-58 are pending and under consideration in this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 U.S.C. § 112, 1st Paragraph

2. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:
The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.
3. Claims 41-58 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Applicants' arguments filed 10/12/2004, have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant's position is that ORFs are well known in the public databases and that applicants do not need to provide an example of every species of a given genus to comply with the written description requirement. The Examiner respectfully disagrees with Applicants' position for the reasons of record as supplemented below.

The claims are in fact genus claims that are directed toward any isolated expression vector comprising any sequence 5'-CACC linked 5' to a start codon of any open reading frame of any nucleic acid from any biological source.

The description in the specification of an isolated expression vector comprising SEQ ID NO: 1 linked 5' to a start codon of yeast open reading frames (ORFs) where the yeast ORFs' expression has been analyzed by Western blot using anti-V5 antibody to detect an epitope tag is not representative of the genus claimed since the genus includes many nucleic acids from many biological sources with widely differing structural, chemical, and physical characteristics. The specification fails to a written description of representative nucleic acid molecules from any bacteria, any fungus, any vertebrate, and any invertebrate as encompassed by the genus claims.

In view of the above considerations, Applicants have failed to sufficiently describe the claimed invention, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms that a skilled artisan would recognize Applicants were in possession of the claimed invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

5. Claims 41-58 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Dubensky, Jr. et al. (US Patent 6,342,372).

Dubensky, Jr. et al. teach an oligonucleotide primer comprising the CACC sequence (SEQ ID No. 69) linked to the 5'start codon ATG of nucleic acids encoding heterologous polypeptides, where the sequences surrounding the ATG start codon from base -9 to +1 that conform to the Kozak consensus sequence for efficient translational initiation (see entire publication, especially column 90, lines 46-58).

Dubensky, Jr. et al. teach eukaryotic expression vectors that contain the above described nucleic acid have in the expressed proteins affinity purification tag for affinity purification of the produced proteins (see column 157, line 67 to column 158, line 5).

The taught expression vectors contain promoters, enhancers, selection marker sequence, and origin of replication (see entire patent, especially Figures 8, 11, and 15; and column 2, line 63 to column 50, line 55).

Thus, the reference teachings anticipate the claimed invention.

Conclusion

6. No claim is allowed.

Art Unit: 1652

7. Applicants' amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
